- Start your tour at Kippinge Church. In the Middle Ages the church was a popular destination for pilgrims. The church received large donations from its many visitors, which is evident by the very attractive adornments.
- Now ride towards Øster Kippinge and turn along Bjergvej around the diked area.
- Continue along Gårdrækkevej to Storstrømsvej, which leads to Nørre Vedbyvej.
- Ride a little further along this road and turn in across Møllebanken. Here you arrive at the site, where a post mill stood until 1918.
- A little further ahead along Nørre Vedbyvej is Bavnehøj, which at a height of 44 metres is Falster's highest point. Here you will also discover large gravel pits.
- Ride on down through Nr Vedby and turn right onto Sortkammervej, where the road runs along the dikes.
- Ahead at Vigen you ride up on the dike, which was constructed in 1841 to drain the flooded area. 1,100 acres of land was dammed, of which a large part is now cultivated.
- In the pumping station behind the dike, there is a model and poster exhibition about the drainage work.
- Behind the pumping station is a marker where you can see how high the water stood before the damming.
- Just ahead is Vålse Harbour, which was constructed by two local corn merchants when the Sugar factory began shipping beets from here.
- The house on the harbour is the former weighing station.
- Ride on to Vålse.
- Ride through Egense and Vester Kippinge back to Kippinge Church. Here you can swap your metal horse for a wooden one.
