

Cycle route near Grønsund-Stubbekøbing 32 km

- Start the trip at the harbour in Stubbekøbing, from where the old wooden ferry Ida sails back and forth to Bogø Island during the summer.
- Ride across the town square, where you see the great 13th century church with its impressive murals from around 1500.
- The Stubbekøbing Museum is located at Vestergade 43.
- The Stubbekøbing Motorcycle- and Radio Museum is located at Nykøbingvej 54. The museum houses a superb collection of more than 150 motorcycles and a variety of apparatuses that illustrate the development of radio, gramophone and television from 1900 to modern times.
- Coming out of Stubbekøbing, ride along Orevej towards Næsgård. Then along Åstrupvej through Vejringe to Åstrup, where the church stands on a tall hill. There are murals in the church dating back to around 1275, including some by the Elmelunde Master's workshop from 1500.
- Continue along Hesnæsvej, Mosebyvej and Bønnetvej to Bønnet Castle ruins, which are situated amid a deep moat on a high terrain south of Bønnet.
- Ride on further to Hesnæs, where many of the houses are covered with mats of reed.
- From Hesnæs follow the national cycle routes 8 and 9 to the harbour in Stubbekøbing.
- From Hesnæsvej the route runs in along a forest road, where a little further ahead you turn right along Batterivej. Right out by the Baltic Sea there is redoubt, which was built around 1807 during the English Wars.
- Back on the route we continue towards Stubbekøbing. Out on the highway again, we pass Næsgaard Agerbrugsskole (agricultural college).
- We turn here out along Gl. Færgevej and pass the place where Marie Grubbe and Søren Møller lived in a house built out of stones from the remains of Bønnet Castle after it burnt down.
- A little further ahead, we come to the ferry harbour, where Marie Grubbe ran the ferry service to Møn.
- The route continues by the dike along Grønsund Sound, which offers a delightful view out to the islands of Møn and Bogø.
- Through the summerhouse district at Ore, we ride along the cycling path back to the harbour in Stubbekøbing.
